Bready, 29, Named As Murderer

Minister's Son Indicted By Ross County Grand Jury For Manslaughter

CHILLICOTHE, Jan. 11—(INS)—Indicted by the Ross county grand jury on a manslaughter charge, Robert G. Bready, 29, will be arraigned tomorrow before Common Pleas Judge W. M. McKenzie. The young adventurer, who fought in the Spanish civil war, is accused of the "unlawful killing" of his pastor-father, Dr. Russell H. Bready, at Bainbridge last Dec. 2.

The grand jury deliberated for five hours before agreeing on the degree to be set forth in the true bill against the son of the Methodist minister. Unless Bready or his relatives can employ an attorney to represent him, the court will appoint defense counsel.

In a signed statement to Sheriff Joseph Vincent and Prosecutor Lester Reid on Dec. 3, Bready admitted he was "morally certain" he had shot his father to death. The state contends that he killed the Rev. Mr. Bready while the latter was walking his son through the village of Bainbridge late at night, trying to sober him from a long round of drinking.

The Rev. Russell H. Bready's pulpit in Bainbridge has been taken by the Rev. R. M. Morris, formerly of the New Holland-Atlanta charge. The Rev. V. C. Stump is the new New Holland-Atlanta minister.

STONE FROM OLD AQUEDUCT USED FOR NEW ROAD

Springlike weather has permitted work to advance rapidly on the improvement of Route 22, west of Circleville.

In addition to pile driving and grading, workmen have started removing the old piers of the aqueduct from the Scioto river. The stones are lifted with hooks and carried over the water on a cableway. The stone will be used in the construction of bridges to permit flood waters to pass under the new highway being constructed above the flood stage.

The old piers supported the wood aqueduct, completed in 1831. Workmen labored nearly two years in constructing the aqueduct. When the structure was finished a great testimonial dinner was held in the Clinton Hotel here. It was erected by Capt. John Ackley and a crew of 70 men, records show. A fire bug was successful in destroying the structure in April, 1915. Huge crowds lined the banks on the night the structure burned, creating a "falls of fire" into the river.

The stones for the piers are believed to have been obtained near Waverly.

OTTAWA COUNTY MAN TO DIRECT OHIO SPORTSMEN

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—Don Walters, of Elmore, Ottawa county, who will head the state conservation division for the next two years, today appointed H. A. "Buck" Rider, of Springfield, as his executive secretary.

Rider, engaged in the insurance business for the last five years, is credited with having a thorough knowledge of the problems of conservation, both from the viewpoint of the farmer and the sportsman. He will serve as assistant to Director Waters.

There had been some agitation for the Bricker administration to retain Lawrence Woodell, of Ravenna, as conservation director, but the appointment of Waters to succeed him was announced late yesterday.

Director Waters is 45 years old. He is noted as a dog fancier and floriculturist and has long been a Republican leader in Ottawa county. His salary will be $5,000.

'Roosevelt for 1940' Club Opens Office; Holt to Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(INS)—Headquarters of the "National Association of Roosevelt for 1940 Clubs" were open in the shadow of the White House today while on Capitol Hill, Senator Holt, (D), West Virginia reiterated his determination to secure an expression of third-term sentiment from the senate.

Holt, who broke with the administration over relief policies, said he will insist on a record vote on a resolution he will introduce condemning the policy of a third term for any president.

David S. Block, Washington attorney and director of the Roosevelt for 1940 headquarters, said: "We expect the American people as a whole to come forward and aid us in the work. We represent the people, not Mr. Roosevelt or either political party. Of course we have no assurance Mr. Roosevelt contemplates accepting the nomination. The White House is familiar with our work but no statement has been made to us expressing either approval or disapproval."

The association claims it is non-partisan. Its president, William H. Iszard, of Camden, N. J., is a former Republican member of the New Jersey legislature. Its founder and secretary, Samuel W. Silverman of Jersey City, is a vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee. The association was founded last June, has 16 branches and claims a membership of 8,000.

Holt declared that George Washington, in serving two terms, set a precedent that "cannot afford to be broken."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(INS)—Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury department and New Deal tax expert, died today in Naval hospital as the result of a heart attack suffered several weeks ago.

Oliphant, 54 years old, was stricken as he prepared to leave his home for the treasury department about a month ago. His condition was known to be serious but not considered critical. Coming to Washington with the New Deal after a long career practicing and teaching law, Oliphant was known as the father of the controversial undistributed profits tax, which created such a furor in congressional and industrial circles that virtually all but the principle of the levy was repealed last year.

HUNGARY SENDS MEN TO BORDER

Two Battalions Ordered To Halt Czech Threats Against Munkacs

BUDAPEST, Jan. 11—(INS)—The Hungarian government dispatched two battalions of armed ex-servicemen to Munkacs today following two alleged new Czechoslovakian attempts to violate the Hungarian-Ruthenian border.

The reinforcements are necessary, it was said, to assist regular Hungarian border guards who successfully repulsed the two attempted invasions last night. Hungary went on record with a sharp warning to Czechoslovakia that counter-measures would follow immediately if Czech troops or armed civilians again cross the frontier.

The warning was handed to the Czech minister to Budapest in connection with an exchange of views regarding the recent border clashes. The minister also was given a demand for indemnity for injuries and damages suffered by Hungarians during fighting at Munkacs and other border points. In Berlin, the official German news agency, DNB, reported from Bratislava in the Carpatho-Ukraine that 40 Slovaks stormed the office of the Hungarian newspaper Esti Uszaj, forcing the editorial staff to line up against the walls while they demolished the furniture.

W. P. A. PROGRAM FACING INQUIRY BY REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(INS)—On the heels of a Democratic uprising against President Roosevelt's relief program, a rejuvenated Republican minority today started a movement in the house for a thorough investigation of W. P. A. before voting the agency funds for the Spring and Summer months.

Although an economy-minded house appropriations subcommittee overrode the President and lopped $150,000,000 off his $875,000,000 estimate of W. P. A.'s needs for the next five months, the G. O. P. members proposed that the house go farther.

They began drafting amendments to be offered from the house floor when the bill comes up tomorrow calculated to reduce the appropriation to $300,000,000 for two months pending an inquiry to establish a comprehensive congressional policy on W. P. A. and to eliminate politics from relief.

Additional Persons May Be Named As Convicted Man Talks

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—In a surprise move, Albert N. Chaperau, admitted smuggler to Hollywood's famous, pleaded guilty in federal court today to an indictment returned only yesterday against the self-styled diplomat and Jack Benny, radio comedians.

Chaperau had been expected to plead to another indictment linking him with George Burns, radio and film comic, in a similar smuggling charge.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—Jack Benny, the funny man of radio and screen, pictured himself as the innocent victim of the insistent friendship of Albert Chaperau in the explanation he gave questioners before the federal grand jury which indicted him on a smuggling charge, the Journal and American reported today.

He was introduced to Chaperau at Cannes, France, by George Burns, a fellow radio comedian, Benny explained, and Chaperau insisted on being allowed to bring into the country the jewelry he had purchased for his wife and comedy partner, Mary Livingston. Chaperau explained to him that he brought articles into the United States in such large quantities he obtained a reduction in duties and insisted on including Benny's jewelry among his own, according to the comedian's own story.

During his questioning before the grand jury Benny insisted he was without criminal intent and was not motivated by any desire to escape the law but merely yielded to Chaperau's pleas to be permitted to extend him a favor. He denied emphatically that Chaperau received any financial consideration from him.

"Benny, it was learned, told federal questioners that in Cannes, on the Riviera, in the Fall of 1937 he bought two diamond-studded gold clips and a diamond-studded gold bracelet with a total value of $2,131 for his wife, Mary Livingston," the Journal and American said.

Army Of Homeless Puts Heavy Task On Missouri

SIKESTON, Mo., Jan. 11—(INS)—The highway encampment of a ragged army of homeless sharecroppers grew steadily today as state and Red Cross officials moved to take charge of the emergency. Strung out for miles along the two major roads intersecting at Sikeston, it was difficult to estimate the number of men, women and children huddling under blankets and makeshift lean-tos.

Reports varied from 1,000 to more than 1,500, about half of them Negroes.

The majority belong to the Southern Tenant Farmers association, leading a protest against eviction from their homes on the various cotton plantations in the district.

It was charged they had been forced out by the landowners who refused to share the cash benefits derived from the government's crop reduction program last year. The sharecroppers claimed they had been ordered to cut down their own output or let their fields lie fallow altogether. The owners, they insisted, had subsequently demand payment for the land but would not turn over a portion of the benefit payments.

The sharecroppers stated that protests had been met by the owners hiring day laborers to handle the work in a concerted drive to break up the tenant farmers union, an affiliate of the C.I.O.

With only meager possessions, many of the families were reported in desperate straits and suffering from exposure. As a result, Gov. Lloyd D. Stark of Missouri ordered the state's Social Security commission to cooperate with the Red Cross in relief measures.

Truck loads of food and clothing were packed for the campers and further aid was being devised.

School Foundation Credit Aided By Extension Of Two Levies

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—A senate bloc made plans today to seize all state-owned automobiles and redistribute them where they are most needed, selling those that are not necessary at an approximate saving of $500,000 during the life of the present legislature.

While this move was under way, the house prepared to take a vote this afternoon on the $43,000,000 partial appropriations bill, reduced from $46,000,000 by the combined working of Finance Director William S. Evatt and the house finance committee. The bill sets up funds for use until July 1.

Leaders of the automobile seizure plan were Sens. Pliny H. Rogers (R-Lorain) and Robert A. Pollock (R-Canton).

Rogers called the present use of state automobiles "a shameful abuse of public funds." He said that he and other senators visited the state garage and discovered 95 state-owned cars not in use.

Many Used Privately
"These state cars are used for the most part for private business," Rogers declared, "while being operated on state-owned gasoline." He said that the drivers use them for transportation between home and office and to ride to football games, and added:

"Very little time is spent in the driving of these cars on state business."

Pollock said there were several departments that have actual use for automobiles and that these departments would be allotted cars. "But they'll be locked up when the day's state business is finished," he added, "and they won't be used privately."

The house eased the school four— (Continued on Page Two)

SHOWDOWN NEAR IN DUCE'S PLEA FOR MORE LAND

ROME, Jan. 11—(INS)—An immediate showdown on Germany's colonial demands as well as the territorial ambitions of Italy was forecast by the official Italian press today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reached Rome for his "clear-the-air" talk with Premier Benito Mussolini.

The prediction was made by no less an authority than Virginio Gayda, editor of the powerful Giornale D'Italia, whose expressions of opinion almost invariably represent those of Duce and always carry the approval of the Italian foreign office.

While linking the German and Italian claims as "essential needs" of the Rome-Berlin axis, Gayda ruled out the war in Spain as a topic of present discussion on the grounds that Italy's die has long been cast in behalf of a "just" victory for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents.

He was introduced to Chaperau at Cannes, France, by George Burns, a fellow radio comedian, Benny explained, and Chaperau insisted on being allowed to bring into the country the jewelry he had purchased for his wife and comedy partner, Mary Livingston. Chaperau explained to him that he brought articles into the United States in such large quantities he obtained a reduction in duties and insisted on including Benny's jewelry among his own, according to the comedian's own story.

During his questioning before the grand jury Benny insisted he was without criminal intent and was not motivated by any desire to escape the law but merely yielded to Chaperau's pleas to be permitted to extend him a favor. He denied emphatically that Chaperau received any financial consideration from him.

"Benny, it was learned, told federal questioners that in Cannes, on the Riviera, in the Fall of 1937 he bought two diamond-studded gold clips and a diamond-studded gold bracelet with a total value of $2,131 for his wife, Mary Livingston," the Journal and American said.

School Foundation Credit Aided By Extension Of Two Levies

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—A senate bloc made plans today to seize all state-owned automobiles and redistribute them where they are most needed, selling those that are not necessary at an approximate saving of $500,000 during the life of the present legislature.

While this move was under way, the house prepared to take a vote this afternoon on the $43,000,000 partial appropriations bill, reduced from $46,000,000 by the combined working of Finance Director William S. Elyatt and the house finance committee. The bill sets up funds for use until July 1.

Leaders of the automobile seizure plan were Sens. Pliny H. Rogers (R-Lorain) and Robert A. Pollock (R-Canton).

Rogers called the present use of state automobiles "a shameful abuse of public funds." He said that he and other senators visited the state garage and discovered 65 state-owned cars not in use.

Many Used Privately

"These state cars are used for the most part for private business," Rogers declared, "while being operated on state-owned gasoline." He said that the drivers use them for transportation between home and office and to ride to football games, and added:

"Very little time is spent in the driving of these cars on state business."

Pollock said there were several departments that have actual use for automobiles and that these departments would be allotted cars. "But they'll be locked up when the day's state business is finished," he added, "and they won't be used privately."

SHOWDOWN NEAR IN DUCE'S PLEA FOR MORE LAND

ROME, Jan. 11—(INS)—An immediate showdown on Germany's colonial demands as well as the territorial ambitions of Italy was forecast by the official Italian press today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reached Rome for his "clear-the-air" talk with Premier Benito Mussolini.

The prediction was made by no less an authority than Virginia Gayda, editor of the powerful Giornale D'Italia, whose expressions of opinion almost invariably represent those of the Italian foreign office.

While linking the German and Italian claims as "essential needs" of the Rome-Berlin axis, Gayda ruled out the war in Spain as a topic of present discussion on the grounds that Italy's die has long been cast in behalf of a "just" victory for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents.

Army Of Homeless Puts Heavy Task On Missouri

SIKESTON, Mo., Jan. 11—(INS)—The highway encampment of a ragged army of homeless sharecroppers grew steadily today as state and Red Cross officials moved to take charge of the emergency. Strung out for miles along the two major roads intersecting at Sikeston, it was difficult to estimate the number of men, women and children huddling under blankets and makeshift lean-tos.

Reports varied from 1,000 to more than 1,500, about half of them Negroes.

The majority belong to the Southern Tenant Farmers association, leading a protest against eviction from their homes on the various cotton plantations in the district.

It was charged they had been forced out by the landowners who refused to share the cash benefits derived from the government's crop reduction program last year. The sharecroppers claimed they had been ordered to cut down their own output or let their fields lie fallow altogether. The owners, they insisted, had subsequently demand payment for the land but would not turn over a portion of the benefit payments.

The sharecroppers stated that protests had been met by the owners hiring day laborers to handle the work in a concerted drive to break up the tenant farmers union, an affiliate of the C.I.O.

With only meager possessions, many of the families were reported in desperate straits and suffering from exposure. As a result, Gov. Lloyd D. Stark of Missouri ordered the state's Social Security commission to cooperate with the Red Cross in relief measures.

Trucks loads of food and clothing were packed for the campers and further aid was being devised.

Intended To Pay Duty On Gems, Actor Says, Denying U. S. Charges

intention of declaring the gems and paying the customs duty of $700 or $800 on them.

Then, said Benny, he had a conversation with Chaperau to whom he had been introduced some time before by his friend, Burns.

"Chaperau, according to Benny's story, had heard of his purchase of the jewels and intended to bring them into the United States in his luggage. Benny said he expressed surprise at this offer and asked why Chaperau wanted to do it.

"Chaperau explained, Benny told the authorities, that he brought articles into the United States in large quantities and thus obtained such a reduction in duties that he could include Benny's purchase without financial loss.

"Benny said Chaperau seemed so insistent on making this gesture of friendship that he permitted him to take the jewels.

"Throughout his entire questioning before the federal grand jury Benny declared he was without criminal intent and was not motivated by any desire to evade the law. He said emphatically that Chaperau received no financial consideration for his part in the transaction.

As Benny prepared to return to his chores in Hollywood, the possibility grew that additional film stars will be drawn into the ever-widening web of indictments being returned by the federal grand jury investigating the activities of Chaperau. Piqued because his friends failed to come to his aid with bail, Chaperau was reported to be talking freely to the jury.

Benny spent an uncomfortable hour or more testifying before the federal grand jury which promptly indicted him and Chaperau on a charge of smuggling, transporting and concealing two diamond clips and a diamond bracelet valued at $2,131. Spared none of the ignominy required by federal procedure, Benny was fingerprinted and photographed before being released for the trial tentatively set for January 24.

"This is a terrible thing," Benny exclaimed. "I am utterly amazed."

The jewelry involved could have been brought into the country legally for about $800 duty, it was estimated.

Unlike his friend and fellow comedian, George Burns, who has pleaded guilty, Benny entered a vigorous not guilty plea with the court clerk. His voice trembled with anger.

Five Indictments Listed

Chaperau, who boasted of his friendship with film stars, has now been named in a total of five indictments. Three involve smuggling charges with Burns, Benny and Mrs. Lauer, wife of a supreme court justice, as co-defendants. The other two involve passport and citizenship irregularities. Chaperau has been found guilty in the Lauer case in which his contention that he was entitled to immunity as a Nicaraguan commercial attaché was rejected. He is listed to be brought to trial next in the Burns case.

While Benny signed autographs for a crowd of several hundred at the federal building here, his attorney issued a prepared statement for him which read:

"I am utterly amazed that I should be accused in the Chaperau matter. I have always thought that in order to be indicted it was

WARM WEATHER BRINGS ROBINS BACK TO HOMES

Unusual springlike weather has brought the robins back home at an extremely early date. Many reports have been heard that robins have been observed at various points in the county in the last few days.

George Colville, of the county engineer's department, said that robins have been seen near his home in Wayne township. The birds have been reported also by W. P. A. workers on road jobs.

High temperature Tuesday was 59 degrees. During the night the mercury dropped to 33 degrees. Fair weather was predicted for Thursday.

necessary to be guilty of some criminal intent.

"Notwithstanding the fact that my attorneys have explained to me that an indictment is equivalent only to an accusation, and may be based on circumstantial evidence, it seems to me to be a terrible thing that a citizen who has not intentionally or knowingly committed a wrong, should have the onus of an indictment charged against him, even though he may subsequently have his day in court and prove his innocence.

"I have never smuggled any jewelry or anything into this country and no one can truthfully say or prove that I have intentionally committed the acts of which I am charged."

Heavy Penalty Faced
The charges against Benny carry a maximum penalty of six years in prison and a $15,000 fine on conviction. The comedian came to New York by airplane and appeared before the grand jury voluntarily.

date fund credit situation considerably by extending the liquid fuel and cigarette taxes through March 31, 1941, over the opposition of Rep. Gus Kasch (D-Summit). The liquid fuel tax provides $12,500,000 annually while the cigarette tax amounts to $7,000,000 a year.

Kasch opposed the liquid fuel extension on the ground that the gasoline lobby was trying to get the bill rushed through before attempts were made to increase the tax, which is now one cent on each gallon.

Levy Not Enough

He tore into the cigarette tax extension because, he claimed, the two-cent levy was not high enough, and when his amendment to increase the tax to six cents was tabled Kasch introduced a bill which would triple the tax.

The house took action on the two tax measures after a caucus of more than an hour and sent the bills to the senate, which will act on them this afternoon.

The senate received for confirmation the appointments of seven cabinet members by Governor John W. Bricker and they were referred to the rules committee.

Sens. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) and A. D. Baumhart (R-Vermilion) introduced a resolution memorializing R. E. Offenhauer, president of Bowling Green university, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

While the senate was doing very little work the lower house was busy with the introduction of 23 bills and five resolutions, chief of which was one to increase the membership of the state civil service commission to five.

The time-honored gerrymander bill to redistrict the state for congressional elections took its place in the hopper.

Both the civil service and the gerrymander bills were introduced by Rep. Chester K. Gillespie (R-Cuyahoga).

Rep. Martin E. Blum (R-Cuyahoga) offered a resolution proposing unicameral, or one house, legislature which, under the resolution, would provide for 80 representatives elected by assembly districts and 24 senators elected by congressional districts. It also provides for submission to the electorate in November, 1939.

BILL PROVIDES CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CHANGE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—Principal changes in congressional districts proposed in the "gerrymander" bill introduced in the Ohio house of representatives by Reps. Chester Gillespie (R-Cuyahoga) and George Harter (D-Akron) would affect northeastern Ohio, examination of the measure revealed today.

On the basis of the last general census Ohio has been entitled to 24 congressmen, two more than previously. But since legislative action is required to redistrict the state, two congressmen have been elected "at large," or by vote of the whole state, in the absence of an agreement on how the state should be re-divided.

Each recent legislative session has seen the introduction of redistricting bills, but all failed of passage because of inability of the two political parties to agree.

Under the Gillespie-Harter bill Cuyahoga county would be given four congressional districts, the 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd. Ashtabula, Geauga, Lake and Portage counties would form the 24th district, while Summit county alone would constitute the 14th.

Lorain and Medina counties would join the 13th district and other districts would remain unchanged.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE MAY SEE MANY REVISIONS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—Complete reorganization of the Ohio Liquor Control department is in the immediate offing, Jacob Taylor, Ohio's new liquor control director, indicated today.

"I expect to make a thorough report to Governor Bricker with recommendations respecting personnel and the conduct of the department," Director Taylor said. "I do not know what will be done. That is a matter for Governor Bricker to decide."

The Liquor Control department is one of the state departments where there are most provisional appointees now in office. No civil service list exists for the greater number of the jobs in Ohio's liquor stores and in the Liquor Control department.

Henry Davis, E. Main street, lineman, was on a ledge above the window. As Mr. Lytle was climbing the ladder it slipped. He grabbed the ledge as the ladder fell.

intention of declaring the gems and paying the customs duty of $700 or $800 on them.

Then, said Benny, he had a conversation with Chaperau to whom he had been introduced some time before by his friend, Burns.

"Chaperau, according to Benny's story, had heard of his purchase of the jewels and offered to bring them into the United States in his luggage. Benny said he expressed surprise at this offer and asked why Chaperau wanted to do it.

"Chaperau explained, Benny told the authorities, that he brought articles into the United States in large quantities and thus obtained such a reduction in duties that he could include Benny's purchase without financial loss.

"Benny said Chaperau seemed so insistent on making this gesture of friendship that he permitted him to take the jewels.

"Throughout his entire questioning before the federal grand jury Benny declared he was without criminal intent and was not motivated by any desire to evade the law. He said emphatically that Chaperau received no financial consideration for his part in the transaction.

As Benny prepared to return to his chores in Hollywood, the possibility grew that additional film stars will be drawn into the ever-widening web of indictments being returned by the federal grand jury investigating the activities of Chaperau. Piqued because his friends failed to come to his aid with bail, Chaperau was reported to be talking freely to the jury.

Benny spent an uncomfortable hour or more testifying before the federal grand jury which promptly indicted him and Chaperau on a charge of smuggling, transporting and concealing two diamond clips and a diamond bracelet valued at $2,131. Spared none of the ignominy required by federal procedure, Benny was fingerprinted and photographed before being released for the trial tentatively set for January 24.

"This is a terrible thing," Benny exclaimed. "I am utterly amazed."

The jewelry involved could have been brought into the country legally for about $800 duty, it was estimated.

Unlike his friend and fellow comedian, George Burns, who has pleaded guilty, Benny entered a vigorous not guilty plea with the court clerk. His voice trembled with anger.

Five Indictments Listed

Chaperau, who boasted of his friendship with film stars, has now been named in a total of five indictments. Three involve smuggling charges with Burns, Benny and Mrs. Lauer, wife of a supreme court justice, as co-defendants. The other two involve passport and citizenship irregularities. Chaperau has been found guilty in the Lauer case in which his contention that he was entitled to immunity as a Nicaraguan commercial attaché was rejected. He is listed to be brought to trial next in the Burns case.

While Benny signed autographs for a crowd of several hundred at the federal building here, his attorney issued a prepared statement for him which read:

"I am utterly amazed that I should be accused in the Chaperau matter. I have always thought that in order to be indicted it was necessary to be guilty of some criminal intent.

"Notwithstanding the fact that my attorneys have explained to me that an indictment is equivalent only to an accusation, and may be based on circumstantial evidence, it seems to me to be a terrible thing that a citizen who has not intentionally or knowingly committed a wrong, should have the onus of an indictment charged against him, even though he may subsequently have his day in court and prove his innocence.

"I have never smuggled any jewelry or anything into this country and no one can truthfully say or prove that I have intentionally committed the acts of which I am charged."

Heavy Penalty Faced

dation fund credit situation considerably by extending the liquid fuel and cigarette taxes through March 31, 1941, over the opposition of Rep. Gus Kasch (D-Summit). The liquid fuel tax provides $12,500,000 annually while the cigarette tax amounts to $7,000,000 a year.

Kasch opposed the liquid fuel extender on the ground that the gasoline lobby was trying to get the bill rushed through before attempts were made to increase the tax, which is now one cent on each gallon.

Levy Not Enough

He tore into the cigarette tax extender because, he claimed, the two-cent levy was not high enough, and when his amendment to increase the tax to six cents was tabled Kasch introduced a bill which would triple the tax.

The house took action on the two tax measures after a caucus of more than an hour and sent the bills to the senate, which will act on them this afternoon.

The senate received for confirmation the appointments of seven cabinet members by Governor John W. Bricker and they were referred to the rules committee.

Sens. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) and A. D. Baumhart (R-Vermilion) introduced a resolution memorializing R. E. Offenhauer, president of Bowling Green university, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

While the senate was doing very little work the lower house was busy with the introduction of 23 bills and five resolutions, chief of which was one to increase the membership of the state civil service commission to five.

The time-honored gerrymander bill to redistrict the state for congressional elections took its place in the hopper.

Both the civil service and the gerrymander bills were introduced by Rep. Chester K. Gillespie (R-Cuyahoga).

Rep. Martin E. Blum (R-Cuyahoga) offered a resolution proposing unicameral, or one house, legislature which, under the resolution, would provide for 80 representatives elected by assembly districts and 24 senators elected by congressional districts. It also provides for submission to the electorate in November, 1939.

COSTER'S FULL STORY UNFOLDS IN TWO DIARIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—The complete story of F. Donald Coster, the "man who lived twice," was reconstructed today by federal authorities from two sensational-studded diaries and other records, which disclosed who black-mailed him and how much he paid to have his secret kept.

BILL PROVIDES CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CHANGE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—Principal changes in congressional districts proposed in the "gerrymander" bill introduced in the Ohio house of representatives by Reps. Chester Gillespie (R-Cuyahoga) and George Harter (D-Akron) would affect northeastern Ohio, examination of the measure revealed today.

On the basis of the last general census Ohio has been entitled to 24 congressmen, two more than previously. But since legislative action is required to redistrict the state, two congressmen have been elected "at large," or by vote of the whole state, in the absence of an agreement on how the state should be re-divided.

Each recent legislative session has seen the introduction of redistricting bills, but all failed of passage because of inability of the two political parties to agree.

Under the Gillespie-Harter bill Cuyahoga county would be given four congressional districts, the 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd. Ashtabula, Geauga, Lake and Portage counties would form the 24th district, while Summit county alone would constitute the 14th.

Lorain and Medina counties would join the 13th district and other districts would remain unchanged.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE MAY SEE MANY REVISIONS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—Complete reorganization of the Ohio Liquor Control department is in the immediate offing, Jacob Taylor, Ohio's new liquor control director, indicated today.

"I expect to make a thorough report to Governor Bricker with recommendations respecting personnel and the conduct of the department," Director Taylor said. "I do not know what will be done. That is a matter for Governor Bricker to decide."

The Liquor Control department is one of the state departments where there are most provisional appointees now in office. No civil service list exists for the greater number of the jobs in Ohio's liquor stores and in the Liquor Control department.

Vegetable Growers Have Important Role in Farmers' Week Activities

Ohio vegetable growers begin their special program during Farmers' Week at Ohio State university on Tuesday, Jan. 31, with the potato growers getting special attention on Thursday and the greenhouse interests also occupying the spotlight that day, according to E. B. Tussing, specialist in vegetable gardening.

The discussion by Professor H. D. Brown, Ohio State university, of the 1938 vegetable variety tests Tuesday will have special interest for all growers who want information about the newer varieties. The second speaker, Dr. D. M. DeLong, Ohio State university, will describe the copper arsenate control method for bean beetles, which are becoming a serious pest in some sections.

Most producers have heard pro and con arguments about the value of light traps in insect control. T. H. Parks, specialist in entomology, and I. P. Blauser, specialist in agricultural engineering, will report on the results of trials with light traps at the university. They really caught insects but not always the right ones.

Growers to Convene

The annual business session of the Ohio Vegetable Growers' Association is set for 3 o'clock Thursday and the annual banquet will be held that night in the Faculty Club at 6 o'clock. Committee meetings of the association will be held Wednesday, and the growers meet that day in joint session with the Ohio Horticultural Society.

FIVE CONVICTS NAMED IN PLOT TO FLEE INDIANA PEN

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 11—(INS)—Five convicts were in solitary confinement today as officials sought out the remaining plotters in an elaborate attempt to tunnel out of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City.

The jail delivery was thwarted after thirty feet of the tunnel had been dug by months of painstaking effort and twenty-five feet remained to the prison walls.

Warden Alfred E. Dowd said a guard had exposed the plot by accident when his foot sank through the roof of the tunnel as he was walking across the prison yard on Dec. 22.

All had gone well, with the tunnel about five feet below the surface and its sides shored up with boards until the group miscalculated on a depression above ground that brought the roof of the tunnel within a foot of the surface.

These two recently introduced varieties have some features which will appeal to many growers. John Graham, Adams Mills, and Claude Shelton, Gallon, will explain, Friday, their successes and problems in irrigating potatoes.

The program for producers of vegetables under glass is built around soil and disease problems. This meeting on Thursday will give many growers their first opportunity of inspecting the new greenhouses at the University. Time has been set aside for an inspection tour of the houses and for examination of new greenhouse equipment.

All sections of the program will include discussions of marketing methods which apply equally to potatoes and all types of vegetables.

Vegetable Growers Have Important Role in Farmers' Week Activities

Ohio vegetable growers begin their special program during Farmers' Week at Ohio State university on Tuesday, Jan. 31, with the potato growers getting special attention on Thursday and the greenhouse interests also occupying the spotlight that day, according to E. B. Tussing, specialist in vegetable gardening.

The discussion by Professor H. D. Brown, Ohio State university, of the 1938 vegetable variety tests Tuesday will have special interest for all growers who want information about the newer varieties. The second speaker, Dr. D. M. DeLong, Ohio State university, will describe the copper arsenate control method for bean beetles, which are becoming a serious pest in some sections.

Most producers have heard pro and con arguments about the value of light traps in insect control. T. H. Parks, specialist in entomology, and I. P. Blauser, specialist in agricultural engineering, will report on the results of trials with light traps at the university. They really caught insects but not always the right ones.

Growers To Convene

The annual business session of the Ohio Vegetable Growers' Association is set for 3 o'clock Thursday and the annual banquet will be held that night in the Faculty Club at 6 o'clock. Committee meetings of the association will be held Wednesday, and the growers meet that day in joint session with the Ohio Horticultural Society.

FIVE CONVICTS NAMED IN PLOT TO FLEE INDIANA PEN

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 11—(INS)—Five convicts were in solitary confinement today as officials sought out the remaining plotters in an elaborate attempt to tunnel out of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City.

The jail delivery was thwarted after thirty feet of the tunnel had been dug by months of painstaking effort and twenty-five feet remained to the prison walls.

Warden Alfred E. Dowd said a guard had exposed the plot by accident when his foot sank through the roof of the tunnel as he was walking across the prison yard on Dec. 22.

All had gone well, with the tunnel about five feet below the surface and its sides shored up with boards until the group miscalculated on a depression above ground that brought the roof of the tunnel within a foot of the surface.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY PAST

WASHINGTON—Lord Lothian, member of Britain's famous Cliveden Set, came to Washington in the course of his current U. S. tour, and told intimates that Chamberlain's "appeasement" policy is finished.

This represents an amazing switch on the part of the social-political clique which last summer practically dictated the foreign policy of England, and made that policy so weak-kneed that Hitler rode over it rough-shod and triumphant at Munich.

Lothian made it strikingly plain to U. S. officials that the Cliveden Set has abandoned any idea of benefits from appeasement with Germany, now realizes that Hitler does not understand conciliation and must be met with his own harsh tactics.

Lothian, former secretary to Lloyd George, who now manages the Rhodes Trust (for Rhodes scholars), said quite frankly that England has decided that in future international discussions force speaks louder than words.

"England will fight," he said; "there can no longer be any doubt of that."

Commenting on the events just prior to Munich, Lothian criticized Chamberlain for lack of shrewdness in his strategy. He referred to the incident when Chamberlain was handed a note from Hitler while addressing the House of Commons, and the Prime Minister with a joyful impulse, turned to the Commons and read the note.

The sensation which this caused in Parliament, Lothian says, made it quite clear to the world, including Hitler, that the British people were willing to make almost any deal for the sake of peace. Therefore, Chamberlain went to Munich with all his cards on the table.

It would have been better, says his Lordship, if he had kept an ace in the hole.

COTTON LOANS

One of the big agricultural fights in Congress is going to hinge on Henry Wallace's drive to get a free hand in determining the amount of future cotton loans to farmers. This means that in years of low world prices, he wants the loan to be less. This in turn means that the loss of the world's export market to American cotton would be less.

The first move in Wallace's drive was to call in a group of cotton producers from 18 states. Actually, most of the "producers" were local or state AAA committeemen, who could be counted on to make findings approved by Washington officials.

The meeting was used as a sounding board to tell Congress that its rigid legislation setting a floor to the cotton loan was causing loss of cotton exports. Current exports of cotton are 38 percent less than last year, and the smallest in 20 years.

a year or two ago. For the British people, including the nobility and royalty, have much more serious things to think about now than court etiquette.

England may soon be glad to have all her sons and daughters, of whatever degree, rallying to her cause on any terms whatever.

Benefits from Cold? There May Be Some

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
GREAT horror is shown by statisticians and sociologists at the havoc wrought by the common cold. About a million people will be incapacitated this week from colds, making a loss of three thousand years of working time.

That looks impressive but I doubt if there is as much trouble as it looks on paper. That work all gets done some way or other. And I have always felt that a cold was kind of a nice thing. It puts you to bed for a day or two and lets you rest your poor, old, tired nervous system. You putter around the house and find things in drawers that you had forgotten you had. And it is a great satisfaction to think of those poor slaves doing all your work at the office for you.

This idea that a cold is a good thing gets some support from the observations of Dr. Charles Armstrong. Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

strong, of the U. S. Public Health Service, published in the Public Health Reports on November 25th. Colds, according to Dr. Armstrong, are good things in more ways than one.

Curbs Other Infections
Dr. Armstrong began to think about the well-known fact that sleeping sickness and infantile paralysis are summer ills; and the common cold is a winter ill. Sleeping sickness and infantile paralysis both enter the body through the nose. Is it possible that a good nose infection with the common cold crowds out the more terrible diseases?

Working on this suggestion, Dr. Armstrong made some experiments. He washed the noses of white mice with salt water and pooled the washings. Then he grew a culture of bacteria from the washings and put minute amounts of these cultures into the noses of other mice several times a week. After a few days he inoculated their noses with the virus of sleeping sickness. Sixty per cent of them survived this inoculation, while in a control group of mice which had not been previously sprayed with the bacterial culture, only 25 per cent survived.

Raised Resistance
Apparently the previous nasal infection raised a resistance in the membrane to other infections. It was found that the bacterial spray caused the production of white blood cells, which have a defensive role against infections. These white cells were poured into the nasal mucous membrane in great quantities. They apparently produced immunity for five days.

It is possible that some form of immunization can be produced in this way and that the experiments have a practical side. Certainly it would be worth trying in a community faced with an epidemic of infantile paralysis. A "summer cold", even if deliberately induced, is a welcome substitute for either of the other common summer infections.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. I. C.: "Please tell us something about nearsighted eyes. I understand a child is born with that condition. Is it likely to get worse? Or does it improve with properly-fitted glasses?"

Answer: Nearsightedness is due to the eyeball being too long. People are born that way. In some cases it develops during youth and then comes to a standstill. This is simple or stationary myopia. Other cases are progressive up to the twenty-fifth or thirtieth year. The wearing of well-fitted glasses improves the condition in every way. Rigid hygienic rules must be enforced.

L. L.: "Is saccharin harmful to one with a heart murmur?"
Answer: No. Careful investigations have shown that saccharin, if taken over a long period, does no harm whatever.

SEEK ANOTHER BID

WHEN YOUR only stopper in some suit happens to be an ace plus a guard or two, try to avoid bidding no trump if you can. Seek some other bid. This is not because your ace is not a secure stopper, but that it is much more valuable in the dummy if your partner holds some secondary or tertiary honor in the suit. Then your side may have the suit doubly stopped, whereas you might have only one stop if the lead comes up to the ace. Bidding some suit at such a time may result in your partner calling no trump and making the game, whereas you would have been set.

North came to grief on this deal because after his opening diamond and South's heart, he thought his black ace were good stoppers for the other suits. He went to 2-No trump and South took it to game. Even if South had made his correct second bid of 3-Hearts, the side would not have made a game, for North would have raised that to 4-Hearts.

A Los Angeles preacher preached for 21 hours, winning the world's record for non-stop sermons. Brief moments for food, changes of clothing and rub-downs did not interrupt the flow of speech, for he had a microphone at hand.

Hearts, at which game is impossible against perfect defense.

East led the spade. J against North's 3-No trump, setting up the suit with celerity and despatch. When he shortly won a trick with his heart A, he ran the setting tricks.

Suppose after North's 1-Diamond and South's 1-Hearts, North had chosen to bid 2-Clubs. That would have given South one chance to call No trump. But if he rebid at 2-Hearts, North could have called 3-Hearts, at which South could safely have shown his doubtful stoppers in the black suits, with 3-No trump, confident that a good man in the North would take this out to 4-Hearts unless holding something in the black suits.

North would have left it at 3-No trump, and the game would have been sure against a lead of either of the unbid suits, which would have been doubly stopped with South declarer.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:
Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a murder mystery when first the eccentric old lady and later her mid-dle-aged daughter-in-law are found dead under the same half drier. Elsie was attending each at the time thought out of the salon for a few moments before discovering the old lady's death. A string of emeralds, belonging to Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., are strangely missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family, and some of the house guests, strike Elsie as queer. Phil Benson, newspaper reporter and close friend of Elsie, arrives as the police launch their investigation. He immediately phones for Mac McIntyre, head of the Chicago homicide squad, who happens to be in town. Meanwhile Richard and Daphne Witherspoon, children of the second victim, conduct themselves oddly during questioning. The chief of police continues his inter-rogation of all those at the Manor when the two deaths occurred. Elsie, Benson and McIntyre discuss the possible suspects.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

"NOW ABOUT this Daphne girl," Phil was saying, "she looks guilty as hell to me."

"How can you say such a thing!" I objected indignantly. He had touched upon a sore spot. Daphne did look guilty; there was no denying it. "She may be shielding someone," I added contradictorily. "Little brother, eh?"

"Oh, you're horrid! They're both sweet kids! Why can't you let well enough alone?"

He eyed me quizzically. "In case you have forgotten," he reminded me quietly, "we are speaking of murder. Someone in this house has killed! Once—perhaps twice!"

"Oh!" The full horror of the situation hit me smack between the eyes. "Maybe," I squeaked, "maybe he isn't through yet!"

"Murder can become a habit." He was not at all reassuring. "And murderers, contrary to existing beliefs, do not look like murderers. Any one of the persons in this house may have committed the crime! Any one of them!"

I trembled. "I'll take Toots," I said, trying to smile and making a poor job of it. "She'd poison the whole shebang without twitching a muscle!"

Phil disagreed. "It wasn't Toots. It wasn't any of the guests. It was someone in the family. Someone who hated old Mrs. Witherspoon so badly that he killed her."

"You'd—you'd have to hate some-one, terribly—to murder them!" My teeth chattered as on a cold, cold night, and I was cold—cold with fear.

"Sure you would! And that's the key to the whole thing! When we find out who hated the old girl, and why, we'll have the answer."

"It might have been one of the servants," I suggested. "Eliza, or Mrs. Greely—"

"It might have been." "You don't really know that Mrs. Witherspoon was murdered," I reminded him. "You have no proof."

"I know." He cupped his chin in his hands. "And if I suggest the idea to Hank he'll give the whole show away, or laugh himself sick at my 'reporter's imagination.' I think we'd best say nothing. We'll let the murderer think he's gotten away with his first job. Later we can have the body exhumed—"

"Phil!" His matter-of-factness horrified me. "Think of it, Elsie!" he exclaimed. "A murder in Lawrenceville. Why, if I can solve this crime I can get a real job on a real sheet in a real city!"

"Can you?" I asked flatly. "Huh?" He looked at me in astonishment. "Don't you think that would be swell?"

"Swell." I avoided his look. So he was just like all men, thinking only of getting away!

For several seconds I forgot all about crimes and murders.

"Aw, baby!" He came over to me and put his arms about my waist. "Wouldn't you like it—in Chicago, for instance?"

"Darling!" I cried, and for several seconds I forgot all about crimes and murders and stolen emeralds.

"Listen!" He untangled himself and walked to the opposite end of the room. "I'm going downstairs and get the lowdown. Wait for me here, will you?"

I nodded. I would not have moved from my room for anything, not with a killer floating around.

"O K. I'm off." He stepped out into the hall and as quickly stepped inside again.

"What—what is it?" "Sh! Daphne and the Todington fellow."

"Oh!" I peered around his shoulder. Daphne and Jeffrey stood in the corridor. They were speaking in low tones. And as we watched the girl opened a door upon our left and without glancing before or behind, silently drew Jeffrey into the room and closed the door.

"Well?" I bounced from the bed and ran half-way across the room. "Well, what?" said Phil, and he sounded so gloomy my heart sank. "Didmore—the report?"

"Report!" He laughed mirthlessly. "Elsie, my lassie, prepare yourself for a shock!"

"A shock? You mean someone else has been—?" I choked on the word.

Phil shook his head. "That's the shock! According to—Didmore, there's been no murder!"

"No murder!" My senses reeled. "That's it! He couldn't find a trace of poison in the body, not a trace!"

"Then it was heart failure?" "Evidently. The doctor admits he is puzzled; says the only thing he can figure out is that Mrs. Horace was suffocated. And even that is doubtful!"

"Doubtful? Impossible. The drier is punched with air holes." "I'd give my hat to get into that salon! There must be something. I can't believe that either death was natural."

"Phil!" I had an idea. "Phil, if Didmore pronounces the death natural, then the murder case is closed and Chief Ellis will have to call off his men—"

"Say!" He regarded me with frank admiration. "You have a brain in your head, haven't you?" "Well—I lowered my lashes in becoming modesty—I'm not exactly dumb."

I outlined my plan. "The family and guests will probably return early after the day's excitement. That means that about midnight the coast should be clear."

"Yes?" Phil was entering into the spirit of the thing. "I'll pretend to go to bed, too. Then you come into the driveway. I'll be waiting at my window and I'll come down and let you in the back way."

"And we'll give the salon the once over, eh?" "Uh-huh—that is, if you're certain you want to take the chance. We might be caught, you know."

"Listen, Elsie," he said soberly. "I'm convinced there is more to this affair than the other fellow sees. Somehow I'm going to get to the bottom of it. I don't want to lead you into danger or trouble, but if you're with me—"

"I'm with you," I assured him quickly. "You can't escape me."

"Good! Remind me to tell you, one of these days, how swell I think you are!" He pinched my cheek. "By the way, McIntyre is downstairs."

"McIntyre?" I had completely forgotten the Chicago detective. "But we don't need him now since there is no murder!"

"I suppose not. And he would have accomplished things too! Can't very well bring a detective into a house where there's nothing to detect? Just the same, I'm going to put him on ice. If things go the way I think they're going to, the Witherspoon clan will be glad of his assistance."

"Don't forget that the emeralds are still missing!" "I haven't forgotten, but until Mr. Horace comes out into the open and accuses you of stealing them, you won't need a defense."

I asked: "Do you intend to take this McIntyre into your confidence?"

"I don't think so, Elsie. I haven't a thing to go on except my own suspicions." He smiled at me. "You and I, darling, will have to work together until we've something tangible and definite to offer."

"All right, Phil. You'd better go now." "O K, sweet." He kissed me fleetingly. "Until tonight!"

"Until tonight!" I repeated. (To Be Continued)

PAGES from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up at an hour that some of my friends insist is not early at all, but, believe it or not, I never see any of them until I have been out and around for an hour or more. At the post did find the box filled to overflowing with very unimportant mail. Away, then, to the plant for a final check of records before turning them over for the annual audit. Really, I think that auditor will feel sorry for me this trip.

Red Crayne has built a boat-house on Scioto river. The other day a man, a stranger, appeared and asked Red if he might change clothing there as he wished to go swimming. Red thought him joking, but the stranger meant it. "It is all right with me," said Red, "but that man from Athens will be along here pretty soon." I wonder whether the fellow asked Admiral Pickens whether he might go swimming in the admiral's river. I know John Bricker fairly well and I think I'll put in my application for seaman, second class, of Hargus creek.

Read in the Columbus papers that the Marysville pond suicide was one of the most unusual of all time. I wonder. Over Indiana way when I was a cub reporter a man registered at a hotel, said he was an inventor and did not wish to be disturbed or his room entered under any circumstances. He bought and installed his own lock. Then, piece by piece, he carried into his room a guillotine. This device he set up. He strapped down his legs, body and head, placed a chloroform saturated cloth over his face, dropped his arms into automatic locking device. All the time a candle was burning. Finally the flame reached a string, burning it in two and releasing a trigger that dropped the great blade. The man's head fell into a sawdust filled box. That man worked diligently for a month to kill himself. I think that is a little more unusual than the Marysville suicide.

There goes Ralph Mack, who bought a new bicycle last July and who since that time has ridden it more than 3,000 miles. Met John O'Brien, of Columbus, who has bought the old Groce packing plant and who says that the original Groce formula will be followed exactly in producing the hams that once were famous throughout the country. The local plant will be ready for operation in a few days.

Drove to the villa of Ashville in the afternoon, spending an hour there and dropped off Editor Geib, who in the evening was to see the Ashville high school quintet flatten the Circleville basketballers. Learned that Pickaway county farmers topped farmers of all other counties in the state in receipt of money for participation in the 1938 A. A. A. program. A total of $252,491, about one-fourth of which has been paid.

On the road between Ashville and South Bloomfield did see a pedestrian, so stopped and asked him if I could give him a lift. He considered my invitation as he munched an apple and scanned a bright warm sky. "No, thanks," he said. "I believe I would rather walk." Note to Ade Yates: Mister, there's the car you said anyone would be glad to ride in.

JUSTICE FRANKFURTER

THE story of Felix Frankfurter might be called an American saga. Here is an immigrant who came from Vienna at the age of 12, poor and entirely ignorant of our language, but the son of a long line of Jewish rabbis, with a good brain. He lived in poverty on New York's East Side, made his way through public schools and college and was graduated with high honors from the Harvard Law School, most famous institution of its kinds in America.

From then on his progress was rapid, but never spectacular. He was assistant U. S. Attorney in New York, law officer in the Bureau of Insular Affairs, assistant to War Secretary Baker, coordinator of labor activities for the federal government, and finally professor of administrative law at Harvard. There he seemed to have fallen into his life work.

He had a rare gift for interpreting the spirit of law, and is rated as the greatest legal teacher of his time. Many hundred lawyers throughout the United States bear, in their minds and practice, the imprint of his instruction.

He had been a confidential adviser of many people high in local, state and national government, and is regarded as one of the most influential people in American life. He is known as a liberal, but not a fantastic, and has had the backing of the American Bar Association for appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States. He now steps into that place of power, above politics and beyond administrative changes, with the good will of the greatest "Aryan" nation on earth.

This true story reads like a fable for our Nazi and Fascist friends to study.

BRITONS TIGHTEN RANKS

POOR, exiled Edward, recently the world's greatest sovereign, homesick for his native land and family, has to return alone when he goes home in March, instead of taking his commoner-wife with him as he hoped. Americans sympathize with him, because they have always liked him and feel that his wife hasn't had exactly a square deal.

Well, Edward may be able to patch up that situation during his visit, and arrange to bring Wallis back with him the next time, and even to arrange that the haughty court ladies shall curtsy to her and address her as "Your Royal Highness." Edward's perseverance may wear them down and persuade his own family that it won't ruin the British Empire.

But the British public is torn less by this controversy than it would have been

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY PAST

WASHINGTON—Lord Lothian, member of Britain's famous Cliveden Set, came to Washington in the course of his current U. S. tour, and told intimates that Chamberlain's "appeasement" policy is finished.

This represents an amazing switch on the part of the social-political clique which last summer practically dictated the foreign policy of England, and made that policy so weak-kneed that Hitler rode over it rough-shod and triumphant at Munich.

Lothian made it strikingly plain to U. S. officials that the Cliveden Set has abandoned any idea of benefits from appeasement with Germany, now realizes that Hitler does not understand conciliation and must be met with his own harsh tactics.

Lothian, former secretary to Lloyd George, who now manages the Rhodes Trust (for Rhodes scholars), said quite frankly that England has decided that in future international discussions force speaks louder than words.

"England will fight," he said; "there can no longer be any doubt of that."

Commenting on the events just prior to Munich, Lothian criticized Chamberlain for lack of shrewdness in his strategy. He referred to the incident when Chamberlain was handed a note from Hitler while addressing the House of Commons, and the Prime Minister with a joyful impulse, turned to the Commons and read the note.

The sensation which this caused in Parliament, Lothian says, made it quite clear to the world, including Hitler, that the British people were willing to make almost any deal for the sake of peace. Therefore, Chamberlain went to Munich with all his cards on the table.

It would have been better, says his Lordship, if he had kept an ace in the hole.

COTTON LOANS

One of the big agricultural fights in Congress is going to hinge on Henry Wallace's drive to get a free hand in determining the amount of future cotton loans to farmers. This means that in years of low world prices, he wants the loan to be less. This in turn means that the loss of the world's export market to American cotton would be less.

The first move in Wallace's drive was to call in a group of cotton producers from 18 states. Actually, most of the "producers" were local or state AAA committeemen, who could be counted on to make findings approved by Washington officials.

The meeting was used as a sounding board to tell Congress that its rigid legislation setting a floor to the cotton loan was causing loss of cotton exports. Current exports of cotton are 38 percent less than last year, and the smallest in 20 years.

a year or two ago. For the British people, including the nobility and royalty, have much more serious things to think about now than court etiquette.

England may soon be glad to have all her sons and daughters, of whatever degree, rallying to her cause on any terms whatever.

Benefits from Cold?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

GREAT horror is shown by statisticians and sociologists at the havoc wrought by the common cold. About a million people will be incapacitated this week from colds, making a loss of three thousand years of working time.

That looks impressive but I doubt if there is as much trouble as it looks on paper. That work all gets done some way or other. And I have always felt that a cold was kind of a nice thing. It puts you to bed for a day or two and lets you rest your poor, old, tired nervous system. You putter around the house and find things in drawers that you had forgotten you had. And it is a great satisfaction to think of those poor slaves doing all your work at the office for you.

This idea that a cold is a good thing gets some support from the observations of Dr. Charles Armstrong.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"Swell." I avoided his look. So he was just like all men, thinking only of getting away!

For several seconds I forgot all about crimes and murders.

"Aw, baby!" He came over to me and put his arms about my waist. "Wouldn't you like it—in Chicago, for instance?"

"Darling!" I cried, and for several seconds I forgot all about crimes and murders and stolen emeralds.

"Listen!" He untangled himself and walked to the opposite end of the room. "I'm going downstairs and get the lowdown. Wait for me here, will you?"

I nodded. I would not have moved from my room for anything, not with a killer floating around.

"O. K. I'm off." He stepped out into the hall and as quickly stepped inside again.

"What—what is it?" "Sh! Daphne and the Todington fellow!"

"Oh!" I peered around his shoulder. Daphne and Jeffrey stood in the corridor. They were speaking in low tones. And as we watched the girl opened a door upon our left and without glancing before or behind, silently drew Jeffrey into the room and closed the door.

"Well?" I bounced from the bed and ran half-way across the room. "Well, what?" said Phil, and he sounded so gloomy my heart sank.

"Didmore—the report?" "Report!" He laughed mirthlessly. "Elsie, my lassie, prepare yourself for a shock!"

"A shock? You mean someone else has been—?" I choked on the word.

Phil shook his head. "That's the shock! According to Didmore, there's been no murder!"

"No murder!" My senses reeled. "That's it! He couldn't find a trace of poison in the body, not a trace!"

"Then it was heart failure?" "Evidently. The doctor admits he is puzzled; says the only thing he can figure out is that Mrs. Horace was suffocated. And even that is doubtful."

"Doubtful? Impossible. The drier is punched with air holes."

"I'd give my hat to get into that salon! There must be something. I can't believe that either death was natural."

"Phil!" I had an idea. "Phil, if Didmore pronounces the death natural, then the murder case is closed and Chief Ellis will have to call off his men—"

"Say!" He regarded me with frank admiration. "You have a brain in your head, haven't you?" "Well—I lowered my lashes in becoming modesty—I'm not exactly dumb."

I outlined my plan. "The family and guests will probably retire early after the day's excitement. That means that about midnight the coast should be clear."

"Yes?" Phil was entering into the spirit of the thing.

"I'll pretend to go to bed, too. Then you come into the driveway. I'll be waiting at my window and I'll come down and let you in the back way."

"And we'll give the salon the once over, eh?" "Uh-huh—that is, if you're certain you want to take the chance. We might be caught, you know."

"Listen, Elsie," he said soberly, "I'm convinced there is more to this affair than the other fellow sees. Somehow I'm going to get to the bottom of it. I don't want to lead you into danger or trouble, but if you're with me—"

"I'm with you," I assured him quickly. "You can't escape me."

"Good! Remind me to tell you, one of these days, how swell I think you are!" He pinched my cheek. "By the way, McIntyre is downstairs."

"McIntyre?" I had completely forgotten the Chicago detective. "But we don't need him now since there is no murder!"

"I suppose not. And he would have accomplished things too! Can't very well bring a detective into a house where there's nothing to detect? Just the same, I'm going to put him on ice. If things go the way I think they're going to, the Witherspoon clan will be glad of his assistance."

"Don't forget that the emeralds are still missing!" "I haven't forgotten, but until Mr. Horace comes out into the open and accuses you of stealing them, you won't need a defense."

I asked: "Do you intend to take this McIntyre into your confidence?" "I don't think so, Elsie. I haven't a thing to go on except my own suspicions." He smiled at me. "You and I, darling, will have to work together until we've something tangible and definite to offer."

"All right, Phil. You'd better go now."

"O. K., sweet." He kissed me fleetingly. "Until tonight!" "Until tonight!" I repeated.

PAGES from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up at an hour that some of my friends insist is not early at all, but, believe it or not, I never see any of them until I have been out and around for an hour or more. At the post did find the box filled to overflowing with very unimportant mail. Away, then, to the plant for a final check of records before turning them over for the annual audit. Really, I think that auditor will feel sorry for me this trip.

Red Crayne has built a boat-house on Scioto river. The other day a man, a stranger, appeared and asked Red if he might change clothing there as he wished to go swimming. Red thought him joking, but the stranger meant it. "It is all right with me," said Red, "but that man from Athens will be along here pretty soon." I wonder whether the fellow asked Admiral Pickens whether he might go swimming in the admiral's river. I know John Bricker fairly well and I think I'll put in my application for seaman, second class, of Hargus creek.

Read in the Columbus papers that the Marysville pond suicide was one of the most unusual of all time. I wonder. Over Indiana way when I was a cub reporter a man registered at a hotel, said he was an inventor and did not wish to be disturbed or his room entered under any circumstances. He bought and installed his own lock. Then, piece by piece, he carried into his room a guillotine. This device he set up. He strapped down his legs, body and head, placed a chloroform saturated cloth over his face, dropped his arms into automatic locking device. All the time a candle was burning. Finally the flame reached a string, burning it in two and releasing a trigger that dropped the great blade. The man's head fell into a sawdust filled box. That man worked diligently for a month to kill himself. I think that is a little more unusual than the Marysville suicide.

There goes Ralph Mack, who bought a new bicycle last July and who since that time has ridden it more than 3,000 miles. Met John O'Brien, of Columbus, who has bought the old Groce packing plant and who says that the original Groce formula will be followed exactly in producing the hams that once were famous throughout the country. The local plant will be ready for operation in a few days.

Drove to the ville of Ashville in the afternoon, spending an hour there and dropped off Editor Geib, who in the evening was to see the Ashville high school quintet flatten the Circleville basketballers. Learned that Pickaway county farmers topped farmers of all other counties in the state in receipt of money for participation in the 1938 A. A. A. program. A total of $252,491, about one-fourth of which has been paid.

On the road between Ashville and South Bloomfield did see a pedestrian, so stopped and asked him if I could give him a lift. He considered my invitation as he munched an apple and scanned a bright warm sky. "No, thanks," he said. "I believe I would rather walk." Note to Ade Yates: Mister, there's the car you said anyone would be glad to ride in.

District O. E. S. Session To Be In City Jan. 30

Anniversary of Chapter To Be Observed

The district meeting of the Order of Eastern Star will be held Monday, Jan. 30, in Circleville, Chapter No. 90, serving as host chapter. Plans for the affair were discussed under the leadership of Mrs. E. S. Shane, worthy matron, at the first meeting of the year held Tuesday night in the chapter room, Masonic Temple. Approximately 40 members and visitors were present.

It was announced that the afternoon session of the conference would begin at 1 o'clock and the school of instruction commence at 7:30 p. m. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock at the Presbyterian church and all members are requested to attend. Reservations for the dinner may be made until Thursday, Jan. 26, with Mrs. A. J. Lyle, phone 783 or Mrs. George Hammel, phone 1202.

The next regular meeting of the organization, Tuesday, Jan. 24, will mark the 41st anniversary of the institution of Circleville chapter. The members of Crown Chapter, Columbus, will be guests of Circleville Chapter and will exemplify the initiatory work as it was given fifty years ago. Luther League

The first meeting of Luther League in the new year was held Tuesday at the parish house. The newly-elected officers were in charge of the session. Sixty members and visitors attended.

The topic for discussion, "Our Church", was given in quiz form by the Rev. George Troutman, proving very interesting.

During the business meeting in charge of Ned Dresbach, president, it was voted to buy new song books for the league. It was also decided that the league should sponsor a play before the beginning of Lent. Gladden Troutman, Mrs. Charles Walters and Mrs. Russell Skaggs were appointed a committee to select the play and cast the characters.

The boys of the league invited the girls to be their guests at the next session, an unusual program to be presented for the affair. The boys, losers in the membership contest, will also serve the lunch. The contest score at the close for the girls was 73, for the boys, 31. Miss Roma Melvin was captain of the girls' team and Eugene Barthelmas of the boy's team.

A unique game followed, the guessing of the combined weight of the league members. Each member was weighed so that the correct total might be known. Later, the league is to be divided in four groups according to weight, each group furnishing entertainment at a meeting.

An appropriate lunch was served under the direction of Miss Rosemary Schreiner assisted by the Misses Marjorie Westenhaver, Mary Katherine Wolf, Betty Barnes, Ned Dresbach, Martin Walters, Walter Eitel and Joe Melvin.

Luther League
The first meeting of Luther League in the new year was held Tuesday at the parish house. The newly-elected officers were in charge of the session. Sixty members and visitors attended.

The topic for discussion, "Our Church," was given in quiz form by the Rev. George Troutman, proving very interesting.

During the business meeting in charge of Ned Dresbach, president, it was voted to buy new song books for the league. It was also decided that the league should sponsor a play before the beginning of Lent. Gladden Troutman, Mrs. Charles Walters and Mrs. Russell Skaggs were appointed a committee to select the play and cast the characters.

The boys of the league invited the girls to be their guests at the next session, an unusual program to be presented for the affair. The boys, losers in the membership contest, will also serve the lunch. The contest score at the close for the girls was 73, for the boys, 31. Miss Roma Melvin was captain of the girls' team and Eugene Barthelmas of the boy's team.

A unique game followed, the guessing of the combined weight of the league members. Each member was weighed so that the correct total might be known. Later, the league is to be divided in four groups according to weight, each group furnishing entertainment at a meeting.

An appropriate lunch was served under the direction of Miss Rosemary Schreiner assisted by the Misses Marjorie Westenhaver, Mary Katherine Wolf, Betty Barnes, Ned Dresbach, Martin Walters, Walter Eitel and Joe Melvin.

Benevolent Association Given $150 from Dance

A check for $150 presented to the Circleville Benevolent association Wednesday by Mrs. Donald H. Watt, general chairman and her committee, proves that the 10th annual Mistletoe Charity Ball was a financial as well as social success. More than 200 couples enjoyed the dance given this year at Memorial Hall, Monday, Dec. 26.

Members of the committee, in addition to Mrs. Watt, this year included Mrs. Howard White, Cincinnati; Mrs. William Radcliff, Williamsport; Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Paul Adkins, Mrs. John Blosser, Mrs. Joe Adkins, Jr., Miss Mary Newmyer and Miss Mary Hays.

The Mistletoe Ball has come to be regarded as one of the outstanding social functions of the winter social season. This year the dance committee and guests joined in making it one of the most pleasurable evenings of the series and the result was even more gratifying than usual. The efforts of the committee are very commendable, as the members serve entirely without recompense. The interest of the guests, for which the committee is very grateful, help to make a financial success of the undertaking, as well as a pleasant social event.

STARS SAY—
For Wednesday, January 11

THERE ARE auguries of sudden and rather drastic movements on this day, according to the lunar aspects. Properly organized and put into execution, this activity may bring unexpected or unusual advantages of profound and lasting duration. It might apply to the personal and cultural rather than business life, as the social, domestic and emotional or higher proclivities are under pleasant stimuli. However, there may be some depressing situation to hamper or nullify very happy prospects. There are signs of much celebration or jollification.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very active year, in which matters will move at an unusually high tempo. Sudden and drastic moves may be spurred by either social, domestic or emotional urges, with the young and romantic particularly stirred. Nevertheless, there may be a setback, loss or disappointment to cast a shadow on a rather festive occasion.

A child born on this day may have a very deep, studious but aggressive nature. While it may be potent and resourceful in a practical way, it may also have artistic cultural and possibly metaphysical talents.

ADVERTISING
—A SERVICE TO YOU

Advertising renders an important service by bringing to you the show windows and price tags of the nation. In the columns of this newspaper all through the year, you can discover and consider the things you want to buy. Thus you need not search through a hundred shops or pay more than you should.

The rule of advertising is simple. The more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sale the less it costs to manufacture. Savings in producing mean either lower prices to the consumer or an even greater value the next time you buy. This saves you money.

So advertising is more than a means for selling goods—it's a service to you!

The 71 year old sportsman has been in a coma since yesterday afternoon, according to a spokesman for the family. Last rites of the Catholic church were administered last evening. Col. Ruppert has been in declining health since he was stricken with plebitis, an inflammation of the veins of the legs, last Summer. New complications recently set in.

Late last night Col. Ruppert awoke momentarily from his coma to say a few words to Al Brennan, a close associate for the last 27 years. "I'm going to be alright," he told Brennan.

Col. Ruppert suffered his newest sinking spell yesterday just as Babe Ruth, once one of the most famous of the Yankees, entered a hospital for a general physical checkup occasioned by a misbehaving heart.

Feed Teams Vie In City League

The fur will fly and the undisputed lead in the City basketball league will be at stake tonight when Purina Feeds and Eshelman Feeds take the Circleville Athletic Club court in the finale of a four game card.

The feed teams are unbeaten in league competition and both are strong.

The evenings festivities begin with the Wallace bakery taking on the Bach insurance team at 7:30 o'clock. The second game puts the Stevenson furniture team and Caskey cleaners together, while the Coca Cola and Glitt market teams vie in the third event.

The entire card holds much promise with all games expected to be close.

The Purina team centers its attack about Creighton Anderson and Pop Warner while Justus, Stoutsville cager, has been topping the versatile Eshelman team's scorers.

BAER PREPARES TO SIGN PAPERS FOR NOVA FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(INS)—Still a reformed, strangely subdued fellow who continues to shun the hot spots, Max Baer was around letting people feel his muscles today and predicting, seemingly with conviction, that the heavyweight division will have a new champion within six months, or just as soon as he can get around to putting the slug on Joe Louis.

That he will get the chance was a foregone conclusion as he prepared to sign articles with Promoter Mike Jacobs for a warmup with Lou Nova in May, with Louis to follow in June, according to the schedule. However, Baer revealed that there is a slight possibility that they may stick Tony Galento in there, too, before he tackles the champion.

"I want to belt out a couple of guys before I meet Louis," he explained. "And then you will see the million dollar gate come back when I fight again for the title and become the first man ever to regain it."

Old Max, who is about to be overtaken by the age of 30, insists he is doing it all for Maxie, Jr. fatherhood befall the former champion a year and a half ago and he never has thoroughly recovered from it, his conversation being devoted almost solely to his son, unless he is reminded that the world has been full of fathers for all these years and that his pugilistic plans might be interesting to know about.

BISHOPS THU M P MIAMI VARSITY IN 49 TO 32 TILT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—The Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan today marked up their seventh win in 12 starts and the first Buckeye conference victory against one defeat, at the expense of Miami University. The Bishops won 49-32 on the home floor after leading all the way.

In other Ohio games, Capital took Muskumung in a lopsided game, 62-33, while Mt. Union and Heidelberg staged a defensive show, Mt. Union winning 27-25.

Cincinnati handled Dayton easily in a contest which saw the Queen City men take the lead early and finish ahead by 46-27. Akron and Glenview State (W. Va.) both showed a tight defense with the men from the Rubber city winning 29-24; and Franklin took Wash into camp 45-43 in a whirlwind finish.

VINES' MIGHTY FOREARM DRIVES PUT BACK BUDGE

CINCINNATI, Jan. 11—(INS)—The terrific forearm drives of Ellsworth Vines put him even with Don Budge at three games each in their exhibition matches today after taking the red-haired challenger 7-5, 2-6, and 6-4.

Vines, who for the most part carried the play to his opponent, got off to a bad start when he dropped his opening service. Budge lost the advantage when he netted three points in the fourth game.

ASHVILLE WINS 37-29 CONTEST OVER TIGER '5'

First Quarter Lead Gives Harrison Township Lads Edge; 37 Fouls Called

Ashville and Circleville engaged in another of the cage battles Tuesday evening that have made their encounters famous, the former team coming through with a 37-29 victory in a game that featured 35 personal fouls and two technical fouls, both of the latter being called on the Tigers.

The contest provided everything that cage fans pay to see. There was brilliant basket shooting, clever handling of the ball; there were as many fouls uncalled as there were charged up and there was bodily contact that found many boys scattered over the floor at various times.

The gymnasium was crowded with fans who anticipated action, and they got just what they went after.

A first period lead that saw Junior Gregg ring up Ashville's first eight points put the Red and Black behind an eight ball from which they never were able to emerge. The Harrison township lads piled up a 15-6 edge in the first session, that margin of nine being one point more than the difference between the teams at the end of the final session.

Davis, Smith Out

The Red and Black picked up two points in the second period, during which Whitey Davis, Circleville's high scoring forward, and Harold Smith, his efficient substitute, were ejected from the fray on personal fouls. Davis played under a handicap of a heavy cold and Smith, although he did well in the reserve game to ring up six buckets, was not in the best of condition because of a head cold.

The Tigers went out to cut into the Ashville lead again as the third period progressed, but the best they could do was slash the margin to five points, 24-19, being the tally as the final session opened.

The Red and Black crew cut the Ashville edge to 24-21 with a fast bucket by Warren Bumgarner as the opening of the final session, but Ashville started to turn on the heat again and the Tigers were left behind. In the final period Ashville lost three cagers on personals, Rose going first, then Gregg and then Walden. The tall center committed his third foul in the second period, but was good enough to stay in the game until it was nearly ended.

Walters Hits Hoop

Paul Walters, hard working Tiger tipoff man, was the star of the Circleville team. The tall youth caged the ball six times from the floor and followed that up with four free tosses. Walden started to play Walters, but Gregg was assigned to him by Coach Al Kauber when the second half opened. In addition to his scoring Walters did well on the defense.

Junior Gregg, rated generally as one of the best cagers to perform in Pickaway county in a long, long while, paced the winners with 14 counters.

The Tiger reserves, led by Smith, counted a 20-7 margin over the Ashville seconds in the preliminary, while the Amanda girls were drubbing the Ashville lassies by a score that was more than doubled.

Circleville takes on Waverly's fast team in the Athletic Club gymnasium Friday evening.

GAMES BEING SOUGHT FOR HIGH FRESHMEN

Assistant Coach Tom Armstrong is seeking basketball games for the high school freshman team. Any county coaches interested in booking the freshmen for preliminaries should contact Mr. Armstrong at the high school.

Early Payments Attributed To Administrative Changes

The Ohio Agricultural Conservation committee has announced payment of $1,718,775 out of a total of approximately $8,000,000 earned by farmers participating in the 1938 Ohio agricultural conservation program. Administrative changes within the counties in computing the payments of individual cooperators for the 1938 program has resulted in the early payments to farmers, Elmer F. Kruse, state chairman, pointed out.

All counties except Hancock and Huron will receive larger payments in 1938 than in 1937, Kruse stated. Pickaway will lead all counties in total payments with $252,491 scheduled to be paid to farmers in the county participating in the program. Pickaway county farmers received $93,611 in 1937. About one-fourth of the total amount has been paid to date in the county.

130,420 To Share

The total payment of approximately $8,000,000 will be paid to 130,420 participating farmers, for a huge increase over the 1937 total payment of only $4,838,991 paid to 113,000 cooperators through December 31, 1938. The first payments under the 1938 program were begun on November 10.

The bulk of the payments was made for acreage adjustments for corn, wheat, tobacco, and potatoes, and for carrying out soil-building practices. Producers of corn in the commercial corn area received 10 cents per bushel on the normal yield of their allotted acreage. Wheat growers received 12 cents per bushel for the normal yield on allotments.

The 1939 program offers considerably increased payments to corn and wheat producers, Mr. Kruse pointed out. The 1939 program provides for conservation payments to participating farmers on the basis of the $500,000,000 annual appropriation authorized in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, and $212,000,000 in price adjustment payments to cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, and rice producers. These price adjustment or "parity" payments will be available only to farmers who stay within their acreage allotments, he stated.

The following are the rates on conservation payments and the anticipated range of price adjustment payments for 1938: Corn, between 14 and 15 cents per bushel on the normal yield of the 1939 acreage allotment; wheat, between 27 and 29 cents per bushel on the normal yield of the 1939 wheat allotment. The exact price adjustment payment cannot be determined until January 31.

Attendants At Banquet Hear Governor Plead For Efficiency

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11—(INS)—Legislators and members of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce had the challenge of Governor John W. Bricker today to "come with me and give the people what they honestly desire and look for—good government."

Addressing the tenth biennial legislative banquet in honor of the members of the 93rd general assembly, newly elected officials and judges of the Ohio Supreme Court last night, Bricker declared:

"It is gratifying to see the business men alert to the needs of good government. Good government is founded on home rule and good government means that the people shall not be in want."

The governor said that those in want will be taken care of, but that business and property should not be burdened beyond those who need the services of the government.

"Let us do what we believe to be best, not today, but in the years ahead," Bricker said. He added that the essence of good government is destroyed when administrative departments are given control and divorced from the advice of the judiciary.

Before the banquet Bricker announced that he will deliver his message to a joint session of the house and senate next Monday night.

Although Hulbert has no intention at all of ever giving formal dance recitals in public, his terpsichorean experience is such that he can break into a tango with all the flash and color of a Spaniard and manage a Russian Katzotzky with the verve of an old time Cossack.
